Rayburn Plan Wins Approval By 217 To 212

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Kennedy administration won a thin 217-212 victory Tuesday in a House vote to loosen-if not break -a conservative grip on its legislative business.

The immediate issue was increasing the membership of the Rules Committee-the traffic control of House operations-by three members. Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., won as the administration leader.

The long-range effectiveness of the change will be proved by time, and the political leanings of the new rules members.

The outcome was a close squeak victory for Rayburn, who said his plan for reducing the power of a Republican-Southern Democratic coalition on the committee was "the only way we can be sure" of enacting President Kennedy's program.

Republican critics denounced the plan as a sinister and dangerous move to pack the Rules Committee and convert it into a The committee will be enlarged Kennedy Calls

Galvao Demands Brazil Assurances Not To Seize Liner

RECIFE, Brazil (UPI) -U.S. Navy Rear Adm. Allen Smith Jr. Tuesday night steamed toward a possible second meeting with rebel leader Henrique Galvaco aboard the hijacked liner Santa Maria.

RECIFE, Brazil (AP)-The U.S. Navy dickered inconclusively Tuesday with Portuguese rebel Capt. Henrique Galvao aboard the Santa Maria amid wavering hopes that the nearly 600 captive passengers would be landed Wednes-

At one point Galvao was reported to have again threatened to scuttle the ship if any effort is made to seize it.

The question appeared to be whether the passengers would be brought in to walk ashore from the Santa Maria at the Recife piers or be hazardously transferred to another ship at sea in the dangerously heaving tropical South Atlantic miles offshore. But Galvao also was reported to have said again he would sail across the Atlantic-perhaps seeking haven at Accra, Ghana.

New Powder Keg In New Guinea

Recent sale of enough Soviet naval and air equipment to double Indonesia's military strength focuses interest on the rapidly heightening quarrel between Indonesia and The Netherlands over West New Guinea. The arms buildup belies all the official talk about peaceful solutions to the dispute.

West Iran, as the west half of New Guinea is called by the Indonesians, is the only part of the rich pre-war empire of The Netherlands in the South Pacific that still remains in Dutch hands. For the past ten years the Indonesian government has been claiming the jungle territory, inhabited by 700,000 uncivilized Papuanssome of whom still use stone axes.

The Dutch say they are aiming at the speediest possible attainment of self-determination by the Papuan people. They are adamant in their refusal to permit a shift from one form of colonialism (Dutch) to another (Indonesian). Still, the Dutch have found the territory to be a financial liability rather than an asset, and there were reports from The Hague last autumn that The Netherlands government would ask the United Nations to place the territory under supervision of a trusteeship group to prepare it for independence.

Indonesia severed diplomatic relations with The Netherlands last August 17 when the Dutch dispatched the aircraft carrier Karel Doorman to the territory with military reinforcements. In a letter to United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, Indonesia charged that the "increasingly ruthless policy" of The Netherlands government "must inevitably lead to clashes between Indonesian and Dutch forces" and claimed the Dutch were using force to prevent Papuan uprisings. The Dutch sought to give the lie to the charges by reiterating "with emphasis" a previous offer to welcome "continuous scrutiny" of the territory by a personal representative of Hammarskjold.

Inevitably, the dispute has Cold War overtones. Soviet Premier Khrushchev heartily endorses Indonesia's claim to the territory as a "just and legal demand." For strategic reasons-New Guinea is the last of the stepping stones leading from Malaya to Australia - the West chev. would like to keep the region out of the Communist orbit. The United States has tried to remain officially impartial, but knowledgeable American officials say the situation is as potentially dangerous as any in all of Asia with the exception of that in Laos.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

A Wife Speaks

The Duchess of Windsor has done something not too unusual, even in these days of casual marriages. She has defended her husband, a defense which seems somehow not to be necessary although her statement of the case is most interesting.

The Duchess feels that the Duke has been badly treated, in fact, persecuted by a "family-designed, government-manufactured curtain of asbestos." What must seem to the public is that the Duke made his choice between "the woman I love" and the Crown. At any rate, they have lived happily ever after, in the United States and France.

Every family has its own way of doing things. For instance, in some families when a member marries "out," he is disinherited. "Out" usually means out of his class, out of his religion, out of his race. In a world where there is free choice of marriage, there is also free choice to be unpleasant about it, as relations sometimes are. The objection to the Duchess was that she had twice been divorced, a state of affairs upon which the Anglican Church frowns. Princess Margaret, when she sought to marry a divorced gentleman was told not to. Probably she really did not care much about it, for a clever woman usually finds some way of getting around her family although the Archbishop of Canterbury may be tougher.

The Duke, however, told them off. He went to the radio and made a speech to which all the world listened with bated breath, telling them to keep their old crown and he will have his lady-love, come what may. And so it was.

Of course, one need not be nasty about it forever. The Duke is a delightful person, well-liked in this country by all who know him. The Duchess is as American as Maryland fried chicken and if the British do not quite understand her, they might assume that Americans do. At any rate, it is good to know that she pays her bills, for the gossip has been that she did not. This is her own statement of the case:

While I am on the subject of money, I would like to state here once and for all time: The Duke and I pay our bills! Oddly enough, the slanderous gossip that we do not has only recently reached my ears, and I was completely bowled over by it. It is beyond me how rumors like these start, since we never have any complaints from the people with whom we trade.

So that ends a tale that I have heard for about 10 years and it just goes to show how nobody tells a person that he has halitosis-not even your best friend. We are all gossiped about. The late Alfred Kohlberg, a dear friend and a violent anti-Communist, left behind him a beautiful fur coat which his widow, Ida, kindly gave me. So I heard the tale that it was sent to me from Russia. It is like all the stories about John Kennedy, our young President. If one believed half the stories one hears, he would indeed have to believe that John Kennedy has outdone both Casanova and Till Eulenspiegel. However, no man, living or dead, could have accomplished so much in one short life and at the same time spent so much time on trivia. Therefore, the smart thing to do is to smile at a good story, to laugh at a brilliant one and to worry not a whit. Now that the Duchess of Windsor has got all this off her chest, let her, like Eleanor Roosevelt, turn to something really interesting and concerning which she is a specialist, namely, household management, food selection if one has the price and floral decorations at which she is a master.

At any rate, the British Royal Family is not likely to change its attitude, although they all did go to Margaret's wedding to Mr. Armstrong-Jones who is not exactly their dish of tea, although why not, I cannot imagine. He looks all right to me, but then I am neither a Queen nor a consort of a Queen. They must have

When the Duchess returns to New York, perhaps I shall suggest to her that, like Eleanor Roosevelt, she

Calling On The New Girl In Town

First Week Of Administration Lacks Coordination

WASHINGTON - Confusion is perhaps too strong a word to characterize the first week of President Kennedy's administration, but a lack of coordination was palpably evident.

Adlai Stevenson, for instance, as Ambassador to the United Nations, made important comments at a press conference in New York about getting friendly with Red China and on other points of policy that one would think should properly have come either from the Secretary of State or from the President. Mr. Stevenson said he "quessed" that Mr. Kennedy would like to have a conference soon with Mr. Khrush-

Secretary Rusk, on his part, was busy the same day explaining to the press in Washington that some of the things he had written a few months ago about the undesirability of "summit" conferences as a means of practical diplomacy should be viewed in a new light. He said that "on principle" the "summit" conference idea shouldn't be excluded and that "the flexibilities we need in the conduct of diplomacy" shouldn't be limited.

The White House let it be known promptly, moreover, that Mr. Stevenson wasn't reflecting the President's views about a Khrushchev visit. Now everybody knows that, if the Soviet Premier comes to the United Nations meetings in New York, he would probably have to be invited to Washington. But there's a big difference between virtually inviting or urging the Soviet dictator publicly to come and dealing with the matter in diplomatic fashion once he is

Then there was the spectacular incident in which Mr. Kennedy participated - the welcome to the returned fliers. The President himself handled the problem of what to do about letting the RB-47 fliers talk to the press. He conferred with them at the airport, and the word immediately went forth that no reporters would be allowed to interview

The impression given was that any information made public might hurt Soviet-American relations. Just why this should be so is a mystery. Certainly, when the U-2 incident occurred, Mr. Kennedy was vocal and so were other Democrats. They demanded to know the whole truth, and the Senate Relations committee, after an extensive inquiry, made a lengthy report of criticism on the subject. It can be taken for granted that no such investigation will be made now, eager though the Republicans, led by Senator Styles Bridges, the able senator from New Hampshire, told now for several years by the Democrats that they have a "right to know" what's going on. fliers appears to be a glaring exception. Maybe there is a good really venture too close to Soviet ment to make public the opinion territory? The United States regards everything beyond the three-mile limit in coastal waters as international and open to the aircraft and ships of all countries except in time of declared war. But the Soviet Union considers 10 miles to be the limit in peacetime. Was the American plane far beyond 10 miles? If so, why doesn't the United States say so and offer the evidence that the returned fliers can give- if, indeed, they can state positively where they were when shot down?

The world needs to know whether they were forced down without a chance to go back and also to be advised what happened to the other fliers reported missing. But the censorship now imposed prevents it. Maybe it will be lift-

Mr. Kennedy himself did something else which he later may reason. Did the American plane regret. He told the State Depart-polls concerning American "prestige" abroad. This arose as an issue during the campaign, and the State Department then remained silent. Mr. Kennedy attacked the department's policy. Naturally, when he took office, the reporters pressed for the same information. So he ordered the data revealed. Does this mean that hereafter every opinion poll will be made public even if it shows that the Kennedy administration has not lifted American "prestige" abroad high enough to meet popular expecta-

Then there is the matter of the censorship of the speeches of the military chiefs. As is customary, one of the addresses was sent last week to the White House for advance perusual but it was sugspeech be toned down. The idea seems to be to curry favor with the Communists just now. It may be wise always to keep the military folks from indulging in international politics by their speeches, but was it wise to emphasize a routine procedure? Why wasn't censorship imposed on how the Admiral's address was handled? For the impression now given is that all speeches by high officials are to be censored primarily to meet a new specification which says, in effect, "be kind to Khrushchev.

This seems a strange way to start dealing with a man who gets tougher when his opponent seems to soften. It seems strange, too, to be encouraging the Soviet Premier to make a trip to America when the whole world knows that he insulted the president of the United States and deliberately broke up the last "summit" conference because this suited his propaganda game. There are many here who, recalling past behavior of the Moscow dictator. think that to kowtow to him can only mean humiliation is in store for the United States - and perhaps war at the end of the road if the spirit of Munich is revived.

Al Fiore, San Francisco - "Soviet Russia has long since established so-called free universities for African and other peoples she hopes to indoctrinate. Surely Americans must find it possible to found a Free University of Cuba. True liberty, freedom, justice, and honor are for export, as indeed are our democratic faith and ideals. The students and professors of such a university will be our ambassadors of peace and friendship. The university will in time form a 'peace and freedom army' that will conquer hate, violence, strife, and enmity.

Marie F. Trippodi, Vandenberg, AFB, Calif. - "After reading your suggestion for a 'Free University of Cuba' it crossed my mind perhaps McDill Air Force Base at Tampa, Fla., might be utilized, since it is to be deactivated very soon. Perhaps it could be utilized in the same way as Bushnell General Hospital at Brigham City, Utah, when it was turned into a school for the Navajo indians.

Robert Rosenbluth, Cook County Department of Public Aid. Chicago - "Your idea is very exciting. May I make one suggestion, namely that such a university be established on Ellis Island, N. Y. The buildings are now federally owned and unused. It would be very convenient for the faculty and of course, being near New York, has many cultural advant-Perhaps instead of calling it a Free University of Cuba, it should be called 'Freedom University' and have it maintained by the federal government for all foreign lands. George D. Gates, Washington, D. C. - "Ever since reading your article regarding a 'Free University of Cuba' I had intended to write you, but am in the midst of final exams in the Georgetown Graduate School. But I have procrastinated long enough. Being a student, my means are limited. I have begun talking to other students and am trying to encourage them to write or drop in to see their congressmen.

Archie R. Murphy, National City, Calif. - "Count me in for any help that I can give. I wouldn't mind paying extra taxes for such a noble cause

Anna Robin, Ojai, Calif.-"After retirement from the Chicago public schools I was privileged to work with Ukrainian refugees in an effort to upgrade employment among them. I know the humiliation, the back-breaking drudgery, the futile interviews, the undaunting courage to face one refusal after another that faced many of these brilliant men and women.

Courage took on new significance. "I also know that many projects were started by private initiative and small contributions. I am enclosing a tiny check for a Free University of Cuba asking that all teachers everywhere speak out to assure the temporarily displaced Cuban leaders that there is work Marian W. Llanza, Boston, Mass. - "I feel this is an ideal way to answer the Communists and want to donate my time in order to show that democracy does work. I wish to start immediately in forming a committee here in Boston to raise funds for the university.

That's just a cross section of many heart-warming letters showing how the American people rally to help their fellow men. how they believe the way to combat Castroism is not by namecalling but by filling up the vacuum now existing between the American and Cuban people by establishing a mecca of intellectual and cultural freedom.

Developments to date are: Sen. Karl Mundt, South Dakota Republican, and Rep. Dante Fascell, Florida Democrat, have introduced two fine resolutions backing the university, and authorizing President Kennedy to use educational and contingent funds for it. Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare Ribicoff has expressed his approval. It will take some more pushing, however, to get results.

When I wrote the original column proposing this university, it was not for the purpose of raising money. I am not supposed to raise money in this column, though tolerant editors have let me get away with it for certain causes such as the friendship train and the Clinton, Tenn., High School. However, this university should not be a government project alone. It should be born from the hearts, minds, and pocket-

gested there that references to the Soviets in Admiral Burke's Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

MIAMI, Fla.-He is a big man, big and old and slow-speaking. The skin around his eyes are sunbursts. His name is Captain William Gray and he is, in my estimation, the world's greatest fisherman. He brings them back alive. It isn't easy.

His square fingers fondle each other and he takes a 70-footer out to sea and fishes the Bahama Banks for tiger sharks, queen trigger, porpoises, barracuda-260 species of fish and mammal. He doesn't use hooks or lines. Capt. Bill traps fish and his assistants haul them over the side tenderly, and drop them into big tanks aft

The captain orders a wet blanket thrown over a porpoise at once or his skin will become sunburned. A hysterical shark gets tranquillizers to prevent him from killing himself by butting his head against the side of a tank. A beautiful queen trigger, with orange and green stripes and huge dotted eyelashes-the Marilyn Monroe of the sea-is ordered to a tank by herself or she will nibble the big fish to death.

Gray is director of collections and exhibits at the Miami Sequarium. There, 700,000 people visit the mysteries of the deep every year and see the porpoises leap through hoops and blow horns and play games, or they stand below and look into the green tanks and watch 300-pound turtles and huge groupers swim by.

I like to fish and, at sea, I've had a few good days and many poor ones. Someone gave me a copy of Capt. Bill's book, "Creatures of the Sea," and, within a few days, I doubled my knowledge about fish. Did you know that a shark has no bones? He is also the only fish who can go six months without food and live. He is able to store large quantities of vitamins in his liver and nature made him this way because he is a slow thinker and a slow swimmer. Small fish have no trouble racing away from him. The shark lives mostly off dead

Sometimes, when he is first brought to the aquarium, the shark decides to die. He will not eat or swim. He turns belly up in the pool. A 750-foot shark channel has been built, and Capt. Bill's assistants have to "walk" the shark by the fins to induce him to swim and live.

Once he decides that life isn't too bad in confinement, he learns that when a big dead fish, dripping blood, is dragged through the channel, it is feeding time.

However, he and his friends are so hysterical that they go into a frenzy of foam-lashing and, in their excitement, they sometimes bite each other by mistake. When this happens, all the sharks turn on the wounded one and devour Porpoises are mammals, not fish. All are born with perpetual grins. Mothers nurse the babies for a year and a half. Their noses are as hard as formica and, when when one leaped and dived back into the tank a few years ago, his nose punched a hole in the shell of a 300-pound turtle. Both were stunned. Both recovered.

Bill Gray started fishing when he stood on a pier at Ocean Grove, New Jersey, at the age of 12. and came up with a skate. He was sure it was a sea monster. He thought he had hooked the fish. The opposite was true. Since that time, he has fished the deep waters from Nova Scotia to South America, and he has directed expeditions into the far reaches of the Pacific.

I asked what his biggest thrill was-I thought perhaps a giant whale shark-and he said he once captured infant sailfish, five inches long, weighing 2 ounces apiece. He froze a few and airmailed them home. He and Fred D. Coppock, of Greenville, Ohio, wanted to build a sequarium. Coppock and some friends had the money; Capt. Bill could get the fish.

The Dade County officials, after years of delay, gave consent but only if the Sequarium was built on Virginia Key. The reason for this was that a new causeway had been built from Miami to Virginia Key to Key Biscayne and it could be financed only if enough people paid the toll of 25 cents. So the new sequarium became a 2-bit

Most fish, when they become reconciled to captivity, are lazy and greedy. They no longer have to fight for food or fight to keep alive, so they overeat. They die of heart disease.

Capt. Bill has outlived everything except the turtles. He is 69, anything but lazy and greedy. He works hard and he frets when there is nothing to do. His arms are hard; his heart is soft.

He seemed to be extra happy at lunch. I asked him why. The big fingers traced nothing on the tablecloth. "Tomorrow morning," he said, "I'm heading out on the rising sea. That's enough to keep me happy.' The old man and the sea . . .

Fatal Accident Rate For Women Remains High CHOLESTEROL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Accidents kill 11,000 women a year in this country. This is twice as many as die from pneumonia, and five times as many as from tuberculosis. Furthermore, there has been no lessening of the accident rate over the years in women under age 65 Fatalities from auto accidents

The home of every oldster should be made fallproof. Cover slippery floors with large rugs, and eliminate scatter rugs to prevent tripping. Handrails offer a much needed support on stairs, and adequate lighting is essential, > especially in halls and bedrooms. Sleeping pills and other drugs poisoned 330 women in the 15-64 age group. It is reasonable to assume that 20 times this number were saved from dying through skilled care. Fewer women shoot themselves but more die from drowning and poisonous gas.

Only 50 were killed in industrial places, despite the millions of women gainfully employed. The accident rate in industry has gone down markedly since safety plans and devices were established. This applies to men as well as women who are safer at work in a shop or an office than in their homes or automobiles.

Prisoner Held For Jury Action

A 21-year-old Flintstone RD 1 youth is being held in Bedford County (Pa.) jail in connection with the breaking and entering of a grocery store in Chaneysville, Pa. January 18. James Raymond Walter was arrested Monday by Sgt. William F. Baker, criminal investigator for the Maryland State Police. Later in the day he was turned over to Pennsylvania authorities for further action.

The youth signed extradition papers before Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris Monday afternoon and was returned to Pennsyl-

Yesterday morning he was given a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace H. C. Bingham in Bedford and is being held for action of the grand jury of that county Pennsylvania authorities contacted Edwin R. Lilya, county investigator, who furnished police of that state with information on Walter who was suspected of breaking into Radcliff's Grocery Store in West Southampton Township last month The police suspected Walter after he was recorted to have gone to the store on two occasions

to get cigarets prior to breaking and entering Sergeant Baker said the youth admitted the breaking and entering although nothing was report-
